Letter from the President

I was very fortunate this past Easter Break to find myself once again part of Bellarmine's service immersion trip to Tecate, Mexico, where we have been building houses for the poor since 1993. One of the things that made this trip so special was the presence of three alumni: Everett Cook '10, Connor Goudreau '08, and Israel Fregoso '15. These young men were all moved by their experiences with immersion during their time as students, so much so that they were willing to give a week of their time to help lead this trip as alums. I would really encourage you to read Everett's article later in this magazine about what the trip meant to him. Likewise, Connor's dad, Jim, a past parent, joined us on the trip, as did seven other faithful volunteers from the Dads' Club. Their gift of time was an enormous blessing and a big reason for the success of the trip. And I can tell you that it was a powerful model for our students of what it looks like to be a Man for and With Others as they become adults.

Earlier this fall, I met with a graduate from the class of 2012 who had just finished college. As we were catching up, he said to me, "Don't worry, Mr. Meyercord, I already made a donation to Bellarmine this year, and I always will." Out of curiosity, I later took a look at his record, and saw that he started giving to Bellarmine during his senior year, and has given every year since, including all four years when he was in college and resources were scarce.

This edition of Bellarmine College Prep Magazine is, at least in part, a big thank you to our remarkably generous benefactors, who enable us to continue our mission of educating the hearts, minds, and imaginations of students, inspiring them to "go forth and set the world on fire!" We have some extremely generous donors, and all of us are so grateful for their support. But I want to make sure that you understand that we are grateful for every gift, regardless of size. We certainly need and rely upon the large gifts that are critical to our success, but equally important is the large number of donors. Our strength, in many ways, is in our numbers. Even the relatively small donations, like those made to date by the recent alum mentioned above, have the capacity to multiply immensely when this same generosity is practiced by many. And it speaks volumes to our faculty and staff, to our current parents, and to our students to know that the Bellarmine experience meant enough to former students, parents, and friends, that they have continued to support the school. Not everyone has a week of time to give to the school, and not everyone can write a large check, but when so many do something, it serves as a powerful testament to the impact of a Bellarmine education.

Your support helps us to keep tuition as low as we can, to provide more than $4.2 million in financial aid to nearly one-quarter of the student body, and to support some of the life-changing programs that really set Bellarmine apart – such as athletics, band, robotics, speech and debate, retreats, and immersion. We couldn't do it without you, but with you, we are making a real difference in the Silicon Valley and beyond.

Editor's Note

*There's a thread you follow. It goes among things that change.
But it doesn't change. People wonder about what you are pursuing. You have to explain about the thread. But it is hard for others to see. While you hold it you can't get lost. Tragedies happen; people get hurt or die; and you suffer and get old.
Nothing you do can stop time's unfolding. You don't ever let go of the thread.*

"The Way It Is" by William Stafford

This poem, written by the late William Stafford, former poet laureate of the United States, has remained with me since I heard it recited several months ago. It speaks to me on several levels, including the inevitability of change, of pursuit, of faith, and of resilience. For each of us, what is that "thread" of which we don't ever let go?

This issue of Bellarmine College Prep Magazine is the Annual Report of Giving edition. Within its pages are the names of generous individuals, companies, organizations, and foundations who, in partnership with all who comprise the Bellarmine community, represent that thread that binds us together institutionally.

Those who support Bellarmine may do so for a variety of reasons, but ultimately common among them – that thread – is belief in our mission.

All at Bellarmine are entrusted with the care and education of our students, and we never take these responsibilities for granted. We are also ever-mindful of the importance of the careful stewardship of gifts bestowed upon Bellarmine, all of which greatly assist us in advancing opportunities for our young men who will undoubtedly become agents of positive change in the world.

We are blessed by your support. Thank you for your goodness.

Warm regards,

From the Principal's Office

This year's Summit on Human Dignity will examine the issue of Sustainability. In Pope Francis' encyclical, Laudato Si, he invites us into dialogue about our "common home." He warns us that the digital world has the power to "stop people from learning how to live wisely, to think deeply and to love generously." As a school that embraces technology, our challenge is to ensure that we intentionally develop deep relationships with God, with one another, and with the earth itself.

Before school started, over 80 faculty and staff members headed out into the community to engage in service. Some prepped the campus garden for the students, others picked up trash along the Guadalupe River, while others sorted food at Second Harvest Food Bank. As I worked on the Guadalupe riverbank alongside my colleagues, I was struck by the serenity I found just a mile from campus. Although we just had a few hours that morning near the river, I gained so much from the experience. I was able to slow down and notice God's creation.

We are blessed to have a campus that enables our students to unplug and connect with one another outdoors. Whether they are playing ultimate Frisbee in the quad, feeding the chickens in the Bellarmine garden or studying at the picnic tables under the oak tree, our students are regularly able to appreciate God's creation all around them.

Our students and faculty have also joined the Ignatian Solidarity Network's Carbon Challenge. This month we have been asked to go on a hike with a friend, post a picture of our favorite reusable water bottle and figure out how many minutes it would take to walk to school. I'm excited by the potential in this friendly challenge within our Jesuit network.

As an institution, we have already taken many steps to make our campus more sustainable. Our CFO, Ron Miller, has been a true leader in looking at ways we can reduce our energy consumption and waste. This summer we replaced over 800 fluorescent light fixtures with LED, we installed foam roofing on multiple buildings, and we replaced the HVAC system in O'Donnell Hall. Since 2014, we have reduced our gas consumption by 8.5%, our electricity consumption by 11% and our water consumption by 25%. We are confident that we can continue to make small changes that will reduce our carbon footprint and have an impact on our environment.

Thank you for all the ways you support and inspire us to be "men and women for and with others."

Haiti immersion

Through Bellarmine's Christian Service Program (CSP), students submit reflection papers based upon their service and immersion experiences. The following is one such reflection written by Bellarmine student Kian Blewett '17, used with permission and edited for length. It provides great insight into the significance of our immersion program from the perspective of a current student.

student reflection

During the summer of 2016, I travelled with a group of eight bells to Carice, Haiti, a small village tucked away in the mountains of northeast Haiti. We spent eight days here, immersing ourselves in the community with the objective of staging a week-long summer camp for the students of a local school, Mon Foyer. Mon Foyer is part of a network of 17 “Foi et Joi” schools in Haiti, which in turn are part of a global network of “Fe y Alegria” (Faith and Joy) schools. These schools provide much-needed education in parts of the world where poverty sinks its fangs the deepest. Carice is no exception, a small village which, for the most part, has no paved roads, no running water, and no electricity. Likewise, Mon Foyer has a tight budget, meaning that during the school year, the education that the students receive is often the bare minimum: science, math, language, and religion. Our hope was that the summer camp would provide some activities that the school, and subsequently the students, simply have never been able to do, whether by virtue of time or (lack of) resources.

Our dream of a blissful, smooth, organized camp was perhaps a bit far-fetched, something we realized when we first saw the magnitude of the student body in terms of numbers, noise, and sheer energy .... Over the course of the trip I called upon my own adaptability many times as cars broke down, organized games turned into chaos, and what I would normally consider to be breakfast was served for dinner (and vice versa). Accordingly, I was most certainly challenged to be patient, as I tried to be when attempting to restore order to a soccer game that had turned into a violent game of what looked like “kill the guy with the ball.”

Perhaps most difficult, however, was the call to be kind. And to be kind at all times, not just selectively. Of course, this was very easy with the children. The way they fought to hold my hand and climb on my back made it easy to give my love and kindness in return. After all, my love for them was my purpose for being in Haiti. Rather, it was my interactions with the older locals that would challenge my love and my kindness. Often while I was leading outdoor games on the makeshift soccer pitch near the school, groups of locals with nothing better to do would come to watch the spectacle of two white people trying to organize a soccer game in an entirely foreign language. This was not an issue until they began to try and get their hands on some of our equipment, an understandable urge considering the rarity of brand new soccer balls, jump ropes, and Frisbees in Carice. I remember struggling to keep my cool as some of these locals, after being denied by me, escalated their efforts to taking the equipment straight from the hands of the younger students, sometimes even getting violent. This anger was then directed at me as I urged them to leave. It was difficult to remember that my love was not solely for the students, but for everyone I encountered. I did not feel like a loving person as I turned them away, yet I had no choice. In exchange for my exclusion of the locals I was (assumably) cursed in Creole and written off as a foreign jerk. Perhaps the most enlightening realization of the trip was that true love and compassion should remain constant regardless of how we are received. There is no way the locals could know that I cared for them too as I sent them away, but that shouldn't lessen the caring itself. I realized that I am often far too selective with the love that I have to give to the world. After all, what meaning does my love have if I save it only for those I deem worthy?

In addition to love, there is certainly joy in service. Let me be clear, I'm not talking about that feeling of “wow, I'm a really good guy for doing this.” That feeling is rooted in self-interest. It is conceited. As I have continued to develop a deeper caring for those in poverty, this feeling is continuously replaced by a more genuine sense of joy in service. In the end, serving the poor is an opportunity, not a sacrifice ... viewing my service as an opportunity, as a chance to stand with the impoverished, shifts the focus of my service away from myself. As it should be, my service then centers itself around love and solidarity with those in poverty. This is where I find true joy. This is why I love serving the poor ...

To me, as long as poverty still exists, there is service to be done. Perhaps this interpretation of service requirements is broader than the average Bellarmine student. But to see the 30-hour requirement as a stopping point implies that service remains a burden or a chore, an implication that does not do justice to the fact that service can be both an expression of love and a source of joy.

One concern of mine was how my intentions would be perceived by the community of Carice. In other words, I didn't want to make anyone think that I viewed them as lesser simply because of our economic and geographical differences, or that I thought of myself as a hero who had come to save Haiti. Neither of those things was true, but while serving sometimes takes a great deal of love, being served often takes a far greater deal of humility ...

Perhaps the biggest obstacle standing in the way of service is division: socioeconomic division, cultural division, even linguistic division. The most difficult part of any service is overcoming division, plenty of which I found in Haiti. In fact, on the surface I had almost nothing in common with the people I had come to serve, from my economic standing down to the color of my skin and the language I spoke. But any sort of division, no matter the severity, can be overcome. It is my personal belief that all humans have an inherent tendency to love, a belief only reaffirmed by my time in Haiti.

Tijuana Immersion

Everett Cook '10 was among a group of alumni who participated in the Tijuana Immersion that took place during last year's spring break. The following is a reflection by Everett about that journey.

It was Connor Goudreau '08 who reminded me of the concrete.

Earlier that day, we had crossed the Mexican border with 44 students and set up camp in a giant, dusty lot as part of the Bellarmine Tijuana Immersion Trip. For the last 23 years, students, faculty, and the Dads' Club have teamed up with Amor Ministries to build houses for deserving families in Mexico during spring break. The homes are not glamorous, but for many, it's a roof where there wasn't one before.

Connor and I both participated in this trip as Bellarmine students and were now on the trip as alumni volunteers. As we sat around the fire, it quickly became apparent that I had only remembered the fun parts of building a house — hitting nails, sawing lumber, and wearing overalls. Connor was not as naïve, though, and gleefully jogged my memory about the first step in the process.

The next morning, we'd be dropped off in an empty lot, surrounded by shovels, buckets, and a seemingly endless supply of concrete mix. Our day would consist of blending, by hand and without power tools, enough concrete to make a sturdy foundation for the house. It would be a backbreaking, unrelenting day.

*Everett Cook '10 next to the pile of concrete that would eventually become the foundation.

Even without the brutal work ahead, I was dreading the next eight hours when we pulled up in the morning. As an alumnus, I had assumed I'd be a motivator tasked with encouraging groups of slackers to rally.

But I shouldn't have harbored any doubts. The minute boots hit dirt, every single Bell began to work like construction veterans accustomed to a job site. They assembled teams and started the slow, repetitive mix-and-pour with an enthusiasm I hadn't anticipated. Instead of individuals leaning on the stronger or more experienced students, I saw one unified group.

This work ethic was on display all week. After the foundation dried overnight, we nailed and hoisted frames before a dozen students clambered about the roof, nailing on tar paper and shingles. Others stretched chicken wire and wedged in notes of prayer before applying stucco. Our crew stopped only for lunch and an occasional round of soccer with the neighborhood kids. There was also spiritual advancement done outside of the construction site, from an Easter mass around the fire to a visit from a family moving into one of our homes.

On the fifth day, we handed over the keys to the house and said our goodbyes. We boarded the bus and drove away, back across the border, back to Bellarmine.

For me, the amazing thing was not just seeing a house appear. It was that instead of relaxing over spring break, a younger generation of Bells completely poured themselves into a house that they will likely never see again for people they will likely never talk to again. It was a level of sacrifice foreign to most high school students.

Unlike me, I hope they remember more than the sawing and the soccer. I hope they remember their aching backs, sore hands, and the concrete. It is the type of work that, then and now, makes them Bells.

2016 Pulitzer Prize for Fiction

Nguyen, an associate professor of English and American Studies and Ethnicity at the University of Southern California, received the award for his first novel, "The Sympathizer," which was featured on over 30 book-of-the-year lists, including The Guardian, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, Amazon.com, Slate.com, and The Washington Post.

"The Sympathizer" begins in April 1975, as Saigon is about to fall to communist invasion. Described as a black comedy, historical novel, and literary thriller, the novel follows a nameless spy who has infiltrated the South Vietnamese army and flees with its remnants to America. His mission: report on their efforts to continue their lost war. He observes the struggles of the Vietnamese refugees to survive in a melancholic Los Angeles.

In addition to receiving the Pulitzer, "The Sympathizer" won the First Novel Prize from the Center for Fiction, the Carnegie Medal for Excellence in Fiction from the American Library Association, and the Asian/Pacific American Award for Literature in Fiction from the Asian/Pacific American Librarians Association.

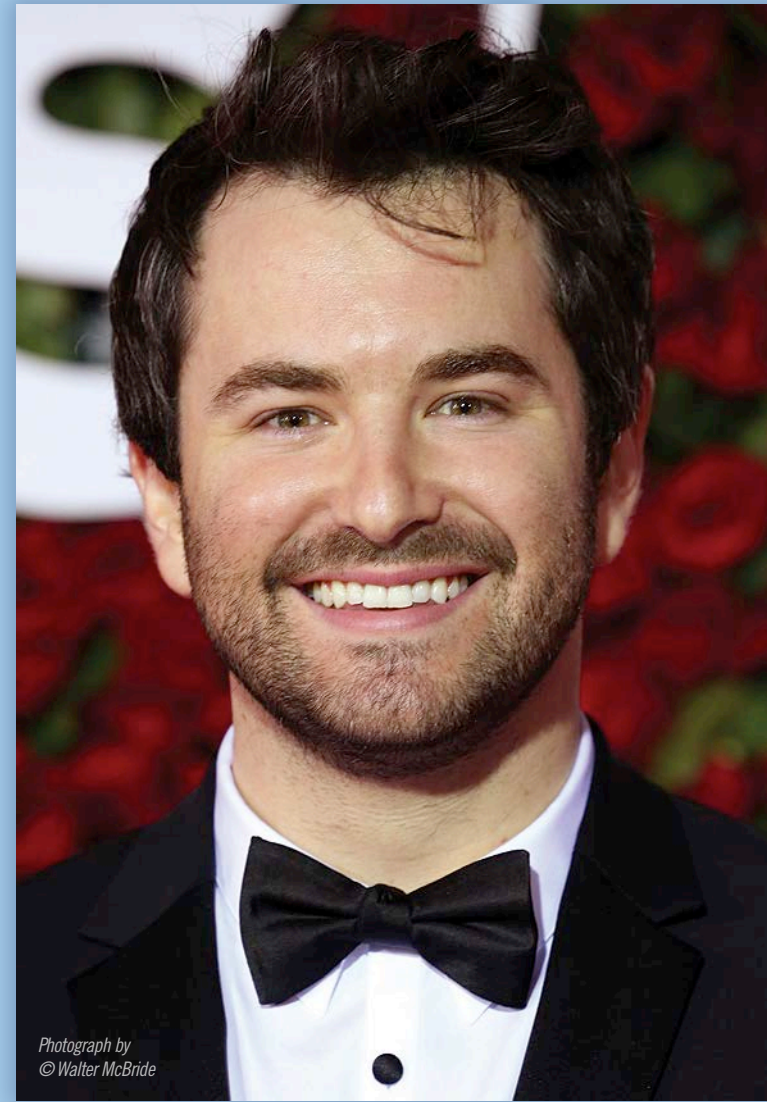

"I think of the enormous debts I owe to everyone who fought for civil rights, for radical power, for economic equity, and how all these issues are inseparable from justice in the literary world," noted Nguyen shortly after learning of winning the Pulitzer Prize. "No minority writer, no writer of color, can claim that he or she accomplished anything purely on their own merit. We all owe so much to the collective struggles and activists that preceded us, that laid the foundations for our individual achievement, to everyone lucky enough to be remembered and so many who have been forgotten."

Nguyen, who received a commendation from the City of San Jose at the May 17 City Council meeting, was asked to reflect on his years at Bellarmine for this publication.

"I remember my time at Bellarmine as one of intellectual rigor and personal challenge," he noted, singling out assignments and teachings of such faculty members as Tom Alessandri '69, Jim Harville '63, Fr. Dick Cobb, S.J. (from whom he learned "how to write analytical essays with no grammatical or stylistic errors"), Ed Sarrett (under whose instruction Nguyen claims to have "mangled French and was exposed to popular, classic, and avant-garde French cinema"), Bill Healy ("... gave me my first opportunity to write a short story"), and his homeroom teacher Patricia Page ("... she bravely sought to instill some feminist and ethnic consciousness in us by teaching Sylvia Plath's 'The Bell Jar' and Alice Walker's The Color Purple.").

"The atmosphere at Bellarmine soaked into me, more than I realized at the time, which is why I can still recall all these teachers and their texts with such clarity and appreciation."

Bells on Broadway

Bellarmino was well represented at the 70th Tony Awards. The annual event, recognizing outstanding achievement in Broadway theatre, was telecast from New York City on CBS the night of June 12.

Alex Brightman '05
arrives on the red carpet
for the Tony Awards

Among the nominees feted was Alex Brightman '05, who earned his first Tony nod for the lead role in Andrew Lloyd Webber's "School of Rock." Brightman, nominated in the category Best Performance by An Actor in a Leading Role in a Musical, was in excellent company, as the prize in that category was bestowed upon Leslie Odom, Jr. for his role in the mega-hit, "Hamilton."

Brightman was also featured prominently in the Tony presentation, as he and supporting members of the cast performed a number from "School of Rock" during the show. While a student at Bellarmine, Brightman was a standout actor, having performed in such theatrical productions as "The Laramie Project," "Seven Ages of Bob," a show taken to the Edinburgh Fringe Festival; and Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." Brightman was also a memorable member of Bellarmine's improvisational comedy troupe, Sanguine Humours.

It was also a treat to see fellow Bell alumnus Ryan Vasquez '10 featured at the Tony's during a production number from the Tony-nominated musical, "Waitress," in which he performs on Broadway. Vasquez garnered excellent theatrical credits during his time at Bellarmine, including the male lead in "West Side Story," the musical that opened the Main Stage Theatre of the Sobrato Center for Humanities and the Arts during his senior year in 2010.

Numerous alumni are involved in the performing arts on Broadway, but this was a rare opportunity to celebrate a Bell as a Tony nominee, and have two of our very own alumni perform during the Tony Awards, enjoyed by millions of television viewers as the show saw its highest ratings in the past 15 years.

Fulbright

Distinguished Awards in Teaching

The U.S. Department of State and the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board last year awarded Lynne West, instructional specialist and former Modern and Classical Languages Department chair at Bellarmine, a Fulbright Distinguished Award in Teaching grant to conduct research in the Netherlands. She was named only one of approximately 49 U.S. citizens who travelled abroad through this program. The following is a reflection by Ms. West, who has been with Bellarmine since 2001, about her journey.

Last semester, I had the opportunity of a lifetime to spend five months in the Netherlands as a recipient of the Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching. It's a wonderful program that allows grantees to conduct a research project in the field of education while abroad. As a long-time foreign language teacher, the Dutch reputation for being excellent with languages was particularly interesting to me. That reputation, paired with the European Union's focus on increasing bilingualism and multilingualism, inspired my project. I had two goals while in the Netherlands:

Lynne West

1. learn as much as I could about the way languages are taught
2. find a way for language teachers to have more opportunities to dialogue and collaborate

Lynne West in gigantic clogs exploring the tulips at Keukenhof Gardens

My home in the Netherlands was Groningen, located less than 25 miles from the North Sea. Groningen is a beautiful traditional Dutch town surrounded by farmland and lots of water. I was hosted by Rijksuniversiteit Groningen, a vibrant international institution of 30,000 students. With the guidance of my advising professor, I developed a plan to observe lots of classes of the most commonly taught languages in the Netherlands: English, French, German, Latin, and Ancient Greek. I visited 12 different schools and saw more than 50 foreign language classes. I was also really interested in learning what Dutch students thought about their study of a foreign language, so I created and administered a student survey to about 320 students. In May, I had the opportunity to present my findings at an Applied Linguistics conference in Sarajevo, and also at the Dutch Ministry of Education in early June. The process of designing and implementing a study was one of the highlights of my Fulbright experience. I had never done anything like this before, so it was all new learning and I loved it. It challenged me intellectually in a way that I have not been challenged in quite some time. I developed new skills and lots of new knowledge.

To tackle goal number two, I set out to develop an online community for language teachers to promote global collaboration and sharing of best practices. I was rather nervous about my ability to actually pull this off. I have good basic computing skills and really enjoy using technology, but I have no actual training beyond the mandatory typing class that I took in junior high. Building the online community involved a healthy dose of frustration at almost every step but, despite fearing the worst, the LinguaConnect community is up and running and ready to grow.

The experience of living abroad was full of personal growth opportunities, too. Each day involved working out how to do something that I have come to take for granted. Being in unfamiliar surroundings forced me to slow down and pay attention to the similarities, differences, humor, and beauty that surrounded me. The newness of every experience was a tremendous gift for which I'm deeply grateful.

Bellarmine Names

First Lay President

In an historic move, the Board of Trustees of Bellarmine College Preparatory named Chris Meyercord '88 as the school's first lay president.

A July 19, 2016 letter to the Bellarmine community from Andrew Moley, chair of the Board of Trustees, announced that, effective immediately, Meyercord had officially accepted the position that he has held on an interim basis since June 1, 2015, following the nearly ten-year presidency of his predecessor, Rev. Paul G. Sheridan, S.J.

"During the past academic year, it became increasingly clear to the Board of Trustees that Chris possesses the requisite qualities that will serve the school by his presidency well beyond what was originally a two-year interim position," Moley noted in the announcement that also conveyed gratitude to Meyercord for, "...his leadership, his commitment to Jesuit education, and his dedication to the family that is Bellarmine."

Meyercord has worked at the school since 1992, where he has held several positions, including faculty member, admissions director, assistant principal, principal, and interim president.

"I am deeply honored and humbled by this responsibility, and am grateful to the Jesuits and to our Board for their trust," said Meyercord. "Bellarmine is a special and wonderful place, thanks to the amazing faculty and staff with whom I work, some remarkable alumni, supportive families, and of course, terrific students who are our very reason for existence. Working together, we get to help form young men 'for and with others,' people who are dedicated to making the world a better place by growing their gifts and talents, and then putting them at the service of others. That is very worthwhile work, and I'm lucky to be a part of it."

Meyercord and his wife of 20 years, Jeanette, have two children: a daughter, Sadie, and son, Luke, who is a Bellarmine freshman this school year.

A formal, comprehensive search for a principal is underway, with the intent being to announce a decision early in 2017. The position is being held on an interim basis by former assistant principal Kristina Luscher who, along with her co-administrators, has been instrumental to the seamless continuity of school leadership.

Fiscal Year 2015-2016 | Annual Report of Giving Edition

Letter from the Chairman of the Board of Trustees

As we approach the holiday season, it is a most appropriate time to convey gratitude to all who make Bellarmine College Preparatory the outstanding educational institution that it is.

As an alumnus of the school, I continue to be very proud of the many accomplishments achieved by our students and alumni; men who are making a difference in their respective communities, both locally and globally.

As chairman of the Board of Trustees, I am grateful to my colleagues who serve our school with me as Trustees, and those who serve as members of the Board of Regents, chaired by Brian McSweeney '78. This group of volunteer leadership, partnering with administrators Chris Meyercord '88, president, Kristina Luscher, principal, and their respective teams, helps ensure that Bellarmine continues advancing unique and important educational opportunities for our students.

Such advancements could not be possible without the generosity of the many benefactors whose names are listed within the pages of this Annual Report of Giving, reflecting gifts made during fiscal year 2015-2016. To all who support Bellarmine in any way, whether financially, by gift of time, or through prayers, please know of my most sincere appreciation.

May you enjoy the blessings of this season now and throughout the new year.

Gratefully,

2015 President's Award Honoree

Gary Filizetti

"Filizetti is also among the many contributors supporting the school's Financial Aid program ..."

More than 360 guests attended Bellarmine College Preparatory's 37th Annual President's Award Dinner, held the evening of October 20, 2015 in the Samuel A. Liccardo Campus Center. The donor recognition event features the presentation of the President's Award, given to those who have demonstrated support to Bellarmine in a variety of ways.

Chris Meyercord '88, president of Bellarmine, bestowed the award upon last year's recipient, Gary Filizetti, president of Milpitas-based Devcon Construction, Inc. Devcon was the contractor during Bellarmine's successful Campaign for the 21st Century, which resulted in the transformation of the campus through the building of the Sobrato Center for Humanities and the Arts, Lorry I. Lokey Academic Center, Br. Wally Ryan, S.J. & Fr. Bob Shinney, S.J. Student Life Center, and the Patricia and Stephen Schott Athletic Center.

Filizetti is also among the many contributors supporting the school's Financial Aid program, which provides tuition assistance to one in every four Bellarmine students.

"Gary's generosity also extends to his support of our Financial Aid Program, as he...recognizes the return on investment by assisting in our mission of ensuring that qualified students are able to benefit from a Bellarmine education, regardless of their financial circumstances," said Meyercord during the award presentation.

In addition to Bellarmine and Santa Clara University, Filizetti is supportive of many nonprofit organizations and causes, including the Children's Discovery Museum of San Jose, Pacific Salmon Foundation, Hollister Rodeo, All Stars Helping Kids, Sharks Foundation, 49ers Foundation, and St. Francis High School.

The event included remarks by Julian Cabrera '16 of San Jose who conveyed his appreciation to the donors whose support advances opportunities for students, and who reflected upon his four years at the school, noting that, "Bellarmine imparts in its students the spirit of brotherhood and community."

Our records indicate that Bellarmine alumnus E. Jackson Going '45 and his wife, Audrey, are the most sustaining annual donors to Bellarmine, having gifted the school for an amazing 50 consecutive years! We are grateful to them, and to all our benefactors, who provide annual gifts to Bellarmine in support of our mission.

Class Scholarship Fund 2015-2016

Current Student Giving

Bellarmine's Student Giving Program encourages all current students to make a gift in support of the Direct Financial Aid Fund, providing tuition assistance to many of their Bellarmine Brothers. Listed below are the names of students who participated in the program during Fiscal Year 2015-2016, all of which are exemplary role models for their peers, and for Bellarmine alumni, as their gift at any level represents the importance of giving back to an institution from which they have greatly benefitted.

Traditionally during the Christmas season, Bellarmine faculty and staff receive a small gift that reflects big thanks for all they do throughout the year. In 2015, staff member Bev Gorshe, now retired from her position as an administrative assistant in the Office of Advancement, suggested providing something in their honor to benefit those in need, which would tie-in directly with that year's justice theme of poverty.

The idea was approved by members of the Faculty Staff Advisory Board, and ultimately the decision was made to purchase three Solar Suitcases through an organization called We Share Solar, which has students build the suitcases that are typically then used by impoverished schools and orphanages in Third World countries.

Through the good efforts of Ann Roemer, Bellarmine science department faculty member, and students of the We Share Solar Club on campus, the solar suitcases purchased were delivered by Bellarmine faculty members and students during summer immersion trips to Ecuador, Mississippi, and Haiti. These trips were led by faculty and staff members Joe Cussen, Michelle Toy, Joe Williams, Chris Colletti, Steve Pinkston, and Frank Wyant.

"The suitcase is very durable, can be carried on a plane, and contains a 12-volt battery, solar panels, and all the equipment needed to invert the power and provide kilowatts for lights, phones, and computers," noted Roemer. "The goal is to size a system so the facility can recharge during the day. They started in hospitals, but soon came to be used in disaster situations like Haiti, and there are currently 1,500 solar suitcases in 27 countries."

Legacy Giving

by Bill Colucci, Esq. '82 Director, Planned Giving

"One way to help us strengthen our educational foundation is to consider a legacy gift to the school."

As you peruse this edition of our magazine, I do want to call your attention to those names listed in the Mater Dei Legacy Society. We are very grateful to those people who have included Bellarmine in their estate plans in one form or another over the past years. Their generosity and thoughtfulness will ensure that Bellarmine's financial foundation will remain strong as we continue to build on the traditions and work that we have been engaged in for the past 165 years.

One of the great things about our legacy society members is that they represent a wonderful cross-section of the Bellarmine community — alums, past parents, current parents, and friends of Bellarmine. I'm especially grateful for those in the last category because, at least to me, their generosity speaks volumes of the work we do, the education we provide, and the formation we engage in for the young men who spend four years with us.

In addition to that varied mix of legacy donors are the ways in which they have included Bellarmine in their estate plans. While many of the gifts are outright distributions from a will or trust, others have utilized different vehicles to effectuate their charitable intent for the benefit of Bellarmine. Some have named Bellarmine as a beneficiary on their life insurance policy or retirement account. Others have provided us with an interest in real estate or appreciated stock they currently own. Another few have established charitable remainder trusts to ensure their charitable intent is duly recognized. As a school, we appreciate whatever form your legacy gift takes. For you, there is also the possibility of some tax benefits or simplification of your overall estate plan. As with our myriad legacy donors, there are many different ways to effectuate their intent in the manner that works best for them.

Fall Estate Planning Tip: Advanced Health Care Directive

This document enables you to name someone to make health care decisions for you should you become unable to do so yourself. In it, you may indicate what kinds and types of treatment you wish to have. Also, this document can serve as a "living will" indicating what type of life-prolonging measures you wish to have. Your estate planning lawyer can draft one for you, or you may be able to obtain one directly from your physician or hospital.

To learn more about Planned Giving opportunities to support Bellarmine, please contact Bill Colucci, Esq. '82,

Director of Planned Giving, at 408.537.9279 or via email: bcolucci@bcp.org

Hall of Fame update

Since 1971, the Athletic Hall of Fame has honored the legacy of Bellarmine student-athletes and coaches, and provided the opportunity to celebrate their accomplishments with the broader community. As previously announced, we will be revising the program, starting in 2017, to include recognition in categories beyond athletics, with a focus on what alumni have done post-graduation, especially at the service of others.

The Bellarmine Hall of Fame will honor a Bell graduate's ongoing commitment to being a man for and with others in his chosen profession, as inspired by the experience of the Jesuit magis. As a reflection of our Ignatian values, we will recognize individuals whose efforts exemplify a commitment to being a man for and with others in the following categories:

Athletics – honoring those individuals in the world of athletics

Business – honoring those within the world of business

Humanities / Fine Arts – honoring achievements in the fine arts (such as theater, literature, music, film, etc.), education, and the humanities

Public Service – honoring those most dedicated to public service, whether it be law enforcement, public safety, government, politics, or law

Science / Medicine – honoring accomplishments in science, medicine, engineering, or other technological areas

Nominations for induction in the class of 2017 occurred through November 15, 2016. Nominations made after that date will be considered for future years. After all nominations for a given year have been received, the subcommittee for each category will confer to determine which nominee will be inducted.

The 2017 Bellarmine Hall of Fame ceremony will take place on April 1.

Historic Soccer Game

A highlight for the Bells varsity soccer team this past season was the December 19, 2015, WCAL opener at Avaya Stadium in San Jose, the first high school game ever played at the venue, home to Major League Soccer's (MLS) San Jose Earthquakes.

This matchup against Archbishop Mitty High School kicked-off at 5:00 PM, in front of a large crowd, and with many Bell football fans just hours removed from an historical Nor-Cal championship game victory, the soccer action did not disappoint.

After a well-played and competitive first half that left both teams scoreless, Patrick Burke '16 struck first with an assist from Bennett Antes '17. Late in the game, WCAL Defender of the Year, Marte Formico '16, assisted Connor Brady '17 for an insurance goal.

The 2-0 Bellarmine victory helped to propel the Bells to a 2016 WCAL championship. Congratulations to the entire team, head coach Conor Salcido '07, and assistant coach Brandi Chastain.

Athletic Fields & Track Renovation Project Update

A blessing ceremony marked the success of Phase II of the Athletic Fields and Track Renovation Project. The brief ceremony, held the afternoon of September 30, just prior to the JV football game against St. Francis High School, occurred at the newly-renovated Ghorso Football Field and Terry Ward Track, and included remarks by Bellarmine president Chris Meyercord '88 and a blessing by Fr. Bob Shinney, S.J. Former Bellarmine athletic director and track coach, Terry Ward, was on hand for the event at the track that now bears his name. Among the message conveyed by Fr. Shinney were these words: "We are gathered here on this beautiful day to ask you, Lord, to bless the renovated Ghorso Football Field and Terry Ward Track, and especially to bless those who helped make this dream a reality. We ask your help that these facilities will contribute to activities that renew the spirit and strengthen mind and body. Bless all who come here, whether parent, player, official, or fan, with Terry Ward's wonderful spirit of dedication and sportsmanship and, like Terry Ward and the Ghorso family, help all of us to always strive not only to do things the right way but to treat people the right way. Grant that all who come here may find the enrichment of companionship and sportsmanship and together offer you the praise that is your due. We ask this through Christ our Lord."

The week of September 26 also saw installation of the varsity football coaches' tribute feature honoring more than a century of Bells football, and a track and field records display. Both are located in the plaza between the football bleachers and the pool area.

Many benefactors provided support for the Athletic Fields and Track Renovation Project, including the more than 300 people who attended the April 16 Breakfast With Bells, a highlight of which was a panel discussion about football with special guest, former San Francisco 49ers great Dwight Clark (who played high school football at Garinger High in Charlotte, North Carolina, but who agreed that, had he grown-up in San Jose, he would have been a Bell). Clark was joined by Bellarmine alumni Michael Clay, Class of 2009, who is now assistant special teams coach with the 49ers; and Pat McPherson, Class of 1987, tight ends coach with the Seattle Seahawks. Other notables in attendance were former 49ers player Randy Kirk; Rhett Hall, formerly of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 49ers, and Philadelphia Eagles; former 49ers assistant coach Bill McPherson (Pat's father); and Bellarmine alumnus California state senator Jim Beall. The oldest Bellarmine football alumni attending the event were Arnie Romanello and Don Bordenave, both members of the Class of 1948.

Bellarmino to Stage “Swift Justice”

Dramatic play, written by former San Jose Mayor Tom McEnery, chronicles infamous Hart kidnapping case

Bellarmino College Preparatory next summer will present the drama “Swift Justice,” written by former San Jose Mayor Tom McEnery and his nephew, John McEnery, both of whom are Bellarmino alumni.

The play, based on the book written by the late San Jose Mercury News writer Harry Farrell, chronicles events surrounding the 1933 kidnapping and murder of young Brooke Hart, a Bellarmino alumnus and heir to the Hart Department Store family fortune. The subsequent vigilante hanging of the suspects in St. James Park is one of San Jose’s darkest moments.

“Swift Justice,” which had its world premiere last January, will be presented in July 2017 by Bellarmino Alumni Theatre (BAT), a group of performers and technicians, many of whom are now professional actors, who were involved in the school’s Theatre Arts program as students. Previous productions include “25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee” (2011) and “That Championship Season” (2014).

“I have been long fascinated with this infamous case of mob violence (especially for its current reverberations), and am grateful to the McEnery’s for allowing us to share it,” said Tom Alessandri ’69, longtime theatre arts department instructor and director of the BAT production. “There seems such karma in a production of an historic tragedy, involving the death of a Bellarmino alum (Brook Hart ’33), written by Bell alumni (Tom ’63 and John ’86), performed and stage-crafted by Bellarmino alumni (from years covering 1969 through 2016).”

The playwrights hope audiences come away with knowledge of more than the tragic events that made headlines. “In San Jose, we must remember our past — the good and bad. It can be used to instruct and inspire,” said Tom McEnery. “History to a community is like memory to a person. Without it, the path forward is cloudy.”

Bellarmino Alumni Theatre’s production of “Swift Justice,” benefiting the school’s Direct Financial Aid Fund, runs July 6 through 9, with two performances July 8 and 9. Tickets will be available in late June 2017.
